ROPELLA INDUSTRY EXPERTISE

The uses for aroma chemicals are nearly as varied as the array of available scents. They're increasingly complex and versatile, used to enhance food, wine, perfumes, and essential oils. They also play a significant role in the creation of flavorants — our perception of flavor is influenced by not just by taste alone, but also considerably by smell. Aromas color not only our food, but also our memories and emotions — more than any other sense.
